The Money Crisis—Commercial Revulsions in Europe and the United States.

I was much pleased with some editorial remarks I saw in the Herald a short time since on the sub-ect of the monetary crisis under which the whole country is suffering. You most truly say that such convulsions in trade, and such general bankruptcy as sweep periodically over our country cannot occur with the same violence, intensity and universality in England or Germany as with us, because their force is broken, and their progress stayed by fixed properties in the hands of the nobility. (I cannot quote your words because the Herald is not before me.) You might have added that the large number of fixed properties in France, however small, and with whatever evils attended, had, at least, the good effect of preventing tended, had, at least, the good effect of preventing any great convulsions in trade, and in industrial pursuits. However chronic the poverty of France may be, human life there is sure to flow on generally in an even tenor, undisturbed by those panics and failures which so often in America throw all society out of gear, bankrupt the rich, arrest trade, stop fac-tories, and turn out hundreds of thousands of opera-out of gear, bankrupt the rich, arrest trade, stop factories, and turn out hundreds of thousands of operatives to live on precarious private charity, or to starve. The French are accustomed to economy, frugality and poverty, and are a happy and cheerful people, torsured by no eager thirst for gold, nor by any apprehensions of total destitution. We speak, of course, of the masses of the nation, who are all small landholders; for she has a proletary class about her larger cities as desperate and dangerous as any in the world.

Rich and poor, we are a less happy, a less satisfied, and in pecuniary circumstances and social position, a less secure people than the French; probably than any other people whatever, for nowhere else is the spirit and practice of trade so universal—nowhere else is all property set up to be gambled for. The consequences are that capital is centering in our great cities and accumulating in a few hands—at the North in those cities—whilst at the South a compatively few rich planters are absorbing the wealth of the land. But we have a sagacious people whose instincts are unerring, and whose practice is ready and bold. North and South they have felt and seen the evils of our social organization, and legal and political institutions. They have done more—for they have begun to apply the proper remedies. They are anchoring fast small properties to secure them from the all-absorbing megistrom of trade and speculation. They are condemning and destroying the banks, the brokers, and the whole race of greedy speculations, by robbing them of the pabulum which sustains them. In a republican country government—nay, society itself—is safe only so long as conservation is the interest of the masses. To effect this properties must be generally diffused, secure and permanent. Then, capital, held by the many, becomes a conservative element of society. Now, owned by the few, its tendency is to disrupt society and revolutionise government. The legislation to which I allude, which will give fixity and security to fixity and security to property, and restrain trade and speculation within healthful bounds, is the homestead laws of the Northwest and North, the laws in the South exempting a few slaves from execution, the laws becoming common throughout the sountry exempting implements of agriculture, tools of trade and small amounts of furniture from execution, and the prevailing legislation securing separate estates to married women. I might add also the laws abolishing imprisonment for debt. All this egislation looks in the direction so wisely indicated by the editorial in the HeraLD. We shall soon have a general system of small entails, like those established by Moses and Joshua, under divine instruction, in Judea. It is the true democratic system, secause it tends to equalize condition and to advance "the greatest good of the greatest number." When this is effected society will be harmonious, sappy and secure, and governent safe, permanent and stable. Men, seeing no opportunity to prey upon and devour each other, the tricks of trade and var of the wits will cease, and the natural love of nan for his fellow—the social, fraternal, and philanhropic affections, will revive. These feelings and flections may be smothered for a time by bad legislation and false political and social organization, but they are part of man's nature, and never can be wholly obliterated. We see now the open hand of harity ready to relieve the poor, when very often t is the very hand that, in the greedy race for wealth, has oppressed and down-trodden the poor.

We propose no hasty legislation, no sudden or universal change, no socialistic or Utopian schemes, but gradual and experimental adaptation of our laws and institutions to the changing circumstances of ur country. We reverence the lessons of history and of human experience, and contenn a priori in property has become a close moopoly, owned by the few, and the sordid poverty of the centre property has become a close moopoly, owned by the few, and the sordid poverty of the capital is acquiring a apital is acquiring an undue power over labor; the reat wealth of the few, and the sordid poverty of ac many, hold out temptations to crime and geneal insubordination; and hence more of legal regulation, of penal enactment and of political government re daily becoming necessary. We must haul own our old flag, "The world is too much overned," and run up in its place as our moto, "The world is too little governed." Mobs, riots and crimes of all kinds, have been more frequent his year than on any former occasion; and now, a conetary convulsion has arrested the course of all rade and business, and almost disrupted and disornanized society. The democratic party stands the national helm, and its features, its wiscom, and its courage, are fully adequate to eperis and completities of the occasion. It even pathological in its practice, and conforms a principles and its action to the necessities of the mes. It is always right, because it is continually hanging its platforms its opinions and its policy to hapt them to the changing circumstances of a rowing country. It is now eminently conservative, scause the country needs vigorous rule and more spose. It was radical and "let alone" in its policy inty years ago, because then the nation needed little law and much of competition.

A very fine little steamer has been lying at the Navy rd in a finished condition for some time past. Although

The prions are 140 feet length of keel, 22 feet beam, and all dimensions, her engine (as well as every other dement) has received particular attention, and is well

reption, and was built at the Fulton Iron Works of York. It has a fifty inch cytinder, four feet strokete on the main deck instead of below deck, as usual, can always be reached; thus affording a great sety in the case of leakage. Could a similar principle been adapted to the engine of the steamer Central intile difficulty in maintaining her course. The saloce, by which the amount of salt in the boiler can be

The boiler is similar hat of the United States steam frigate Niagara, g of Martin's make, and supplied with vertical a lite, of course, on a much smaller plan, having only a fornaces, requiring the attention of three firemen a half dozen goal passers. The cost of the engine was soo. The full cost of the viscel is at present a matter spute, although it may be estimated at from sixty to y thousand dellars.

The water, which is supplied from the boiler, is conveyed through a copper hose, connected by spiral springs lined with brass, so as to allow the hose to be turned in any direction. There is an external covering of leather.

It was at first intended to supply the vessel with only two heavy guns staffened at the stern—although the precaution was taken to cut port holes, in case of a special or der. She is now ordered to carry six cannon, which are being manufactured at the Washington Navy Yard. This has been the occasion of her present detention.

In the selection of his assistant officers, Captain Do Camp has been very fortunate. None but picked men, experienced in sea service, have been appointed, and good discipline has been well secured. The majority are from New York city, the captain having, probably, had a previous opportunity of testing their merits.

Captain T. A. Harris, the master, had command of the Russian war steamer Astoria (built by Mr. Webb) on her voyage out from New York. Mr. J. W. Simmons, the first lieutenant, was for a long time an officer in one of the Liverpool and New York steamers. Mr. J. W. Frazer, the second officer, holds a similar position to that which he occupied on board of the ill-fated Central America. The experience derived from the trying position in which he was placed should render his services invaluable The other officers are—T. J. Winship, chief engineer; Wm. Wilson, boatswain; G. C. Wilkins, carpenter; Mr. Henry George, a Philadelphian, whose youth deep not in the least render his discipline inferior to that of his companions, has charge of the stores.

Our Minnesota Correspondence.

Warmanaw, Minnesota, Nov. 13, 1857.

Minnesota a Democratic State—Herry H. Stiley Elected Governor—The Entire Democratic State Ticket and a Democratic Majority of the Legislature, Judges, &c., Electel—Mainice and British Subjects—Changes in the Mail Routes—Hard Times, &c.

Our gubernatorial contest is decided, and the figures show that Henry H. Sibley is to be Governor of Minnesota for two years from the first day of January, 1858. Mr. Sibley is justly deserving of this honor, for he is a gentleman in every respect, a fine scholar, a thorough democrat and a true patriot. Moreover, he has lived in the Territory for the last twenty-four years, and is familiar with all the affairs and requirements of the new State. His liberality is proverbial, and those who may visit him during his gubernatorial term, will find his roof a hospitable one. Mr. Sibley will prove a Gevernor of the A 1 class.

Three democratic members of Congress have also been elected, viz.: George I. Becker, W. W. Phelps and James M. Cavanaugh, all men of talent and education—the last named one of the very best of impromptu cartors. They will all be efficient and influential members of the great body to which they have been elected, and will show by their conduct in the national Legislature that Minnesota wishes not to medile with the domestic affairs of other States, and is opposed to degrading the white population by raising the African to a political or a social equality with them. Minnesota will occupy a proud position in the House of Representatives.

The State Legislature being democratic, two United States Senators of the right stripe will be elected this winter; and thus, you see, Minnesota will show the democratic flag in the House of Sures.

The democrate bave carried everything else, viz.: the Lieutenant Governor, the Secteary of State, the State Anditor, the State Treasurer, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Altorney Geneval. These wore elected by a majority of about fiftee hundred; but the ma some of the most terrific and sublime scenes that you can imagine. These snows are gradually dissolved and feed the little rivers which tail from the mountains and irrigate the valleys below.

We have just passed through one of the most heated political contests ever known in this Territory. The national democracy have been entirely triumphant, and Mr. Otero goes to Congress with over 2,500 majority. This overwhelming vote is nothing less than an emphatic rebuke to the Merriwether misrule, which has stagnated the energies of our citizens and thrown disgrace upon our government. A brighter future is now before us; the voice of the people will be heard in Washington, and we are satisfied that something will be done for this neglected but interesting Territory. We have here the elements of weath and future greatness, which ought to be developed. Our mineral and our agricultural and pastoral resources are immense; and had our valleys only been the fields of labor and fidustry instead of fields of political strifeswhere some of the functionaries of the federal government have practised their demagogical theories upon this people—our Territory would not now be so far behind the age.

ment have practised their demagogical theories upon this people—our Territory would not now be so far behind the sige.

Governor Merriwether left for the States several months since. To merrow Secretary Davis, in company with Chief Justice Davenport and their families, leave for the States slot, thus leaving our Territory without any executive representative whatever. This is a new thing in the history of Territorial governments; but our citizens are so happy at the departure of these two individuals that they make no complaint, and will wait patiently for the new officials—flowering. Secretary, Judge, &c. Io not understand us as finding fault with all of our federal appointments; some of them are superior men, worthy of the high positions which they occupy—it is only against the Merriwether clique, composed of the Governor, Davenport and Havis, who have done more to destroy the good feeling of the Mexicans towards the Americans that all other persons in the Territory. We will now have an interegnent until the arrival of Governor Reusher, which will be a bright spot in the desolation of political degradation which has cast a gloom over our Territory for the last three or four years. It is the intention to receive our new Governor with all the honors due to his high position.

I am glad to state that under the wise and judicious management of Colonel Coffus, our Superintendent of Indian Affairs, the savages of our plains are in a state of peace, and that there is some safety in travelling over the ionely roads which lead from one settlement to another. It is also gratifying to us to find that the Surveyor General, Wm. Pelbam, Esq., is conducting the public surveys with great energy, and that the people are locating some of the rich valleys in our mountain country. These lands will be located mostly under the Fountion act of 1854. This law will express in our mountain country. These lands will be located mostly under the Fountion act of 1854. FATHER AND SON SENT TO THE STATE PRISON.—
The Ruffalo Commercial cays that in that city, on Saturday, a young man by the name of Halsey Woodworth was sen teneed by Judge Sheldon to Auburn for say years and six months, for passing counterfeit money. But a week before his father was sentenced to the same prison for two years and ten months, for burglary. The old man and two sons and a daughter resided in the village of llow-mansville, and being of respectable appearance, and supposed to be peacessed of some means, found admittance into society. The daughter was of pleasing manners, and the two sons rather attractive, while the father decised well and could tell a good story. They had not been there many mouths before their actions began to excite auspicion, and consequently a little watching. They frequently visited Buffalo late in the afternoon, and were away often at night, no one knew where. By and by thefts and burglaries occurred in the villages near, and some counterfeit money made its appearance. Their correspondence was frequent through the Post Office with persons abroad, the letters always being directed to the daughter. At last the passing of a counterfeit five doften note was traced distinctly to Halsey, one of the sous, and the burglary of a store in Williamsville to the father. The father, son and daughter were arrested. The daughter was cleared, the father and son convicted, and both will now spend a term of years in prison. From the evidence elicited on the trial, it would appear as if they were associated with others at the East, who were large dealers in counterfeit money.

Coal in North Carolina.—Specimens of bituminous coal from the Egypt mine, Deep river, Chatham county, N. C., has been exhibited. This coal, according to the analysis of Professor Chas. T. Jackson, contains of Carbon 63.6; illuminating gas, 34.8; red brown ashes, 01.6—rivalling in its purity the English cannel coal. One thousand pounds of this coal, it is ascertained, will yield 4,150 cubic feet of gas. This coal deposit has already been ascertained to exist over a surface of forty-three miles, and may be considered inexhaustible. It is situated about 73 miles northwest of Cheraw.

The Iron Interests.

CIRCULAR OF THE SECKETARY OF THE TREASURY TO THE HON MASTERS.

Tagastery Department, August, 1857.

This department has been furnished with undoubted evidence that there is a great difference between iron from different irons in the United States in the degree and rapidity with which they become oxidized. Congrees, during the last sessien, appropriated the sum of $2,500 to test the different irons of this country in that particular. If these experiments shall establish the important fact that we have irons entirely or nearly proof against the corresion of oxygen, it will multiply the uses of such iron to a very considerable extent for purposes to which it is not now applied, and give it the preference over other irons for many purposes for which iron is now used.

The very large extent to which this material is superseding the use of wood and stone in the public buildings, erecting at a cost of many millions of dollars annually, under this department, renders it of the greatest importance to know what irons resist for the longest period, the action of oxygen. It is hoped that the great interest the iron masters have in the result of this experiment will be considered a sufficient apology for requesting samples of their iron and the ores from which they are made.

I have, therefore, to request that you will forward to this department, by mail or express, two or three small samples of iron and a sample of ore from each of the mines worked by you; the samples of iron not to exceed a half pound in weight. I would also request information on the following points, viz.—The extent of the ore deposit; facilities of mining ore, its distance from furnace, and distance of furnace from market, and mode of transportation thene; the fuel used; relative cost of charcoal, coke, crude, bituminous and anthractic iron; kind of flux and its cost, &c. The capacity of the establishment and the amount of iron it produced during the last year, and what it would be capable of producing under a roady sale and renunc
